

Bridge Scoring Strategies and Tactics: Elevate Your Game to New Heights

Bridge Scoring, Strategies, and Tactics

AKA: Mattias — November 27, 2009

The game of Contract Bridge falls into two basic methods of scoring: rubber bridge scoring and duplicate bridge scoring. In either form, the contract is bid in the number of tricks (one to seven) in excess of six tricks, called "book". For example, a bid of 1♥ proposes to take at least 6 + 1 = 7 tricks.

Rubber bridge came first, and its scoring is more complicated; the scoring on one hand depends on what happened on previous hands. In duplicate bridge, the score on any hand is independent of others. This scoring is simpler to present, so I'll start there.

Duplicate Bridge Scoring

Duplicate scoring is often reduced to a table of results. You look up the contract, vulnerability and result, and then total off the score. However, such tables are produced by calculating from the rules. You should be able to calculate the possible scores during play, to choose your correct action.

Contracts Made

Contract bid and made	First trick	Subsequent tricks
Minor suit (♣ or ♠)	20	20
Major suit (♥ or ♠)	30	30
No Trump	40	30
Doubled	Double the above
Redoubled	Quadruple the above

Contract Bonus (one per contract)	Not Vul.	Vulnerable
Game (100 points) bid and made	300	500
Part score (any lesser contract) bid and made	50	50

Other bonuses	Not Vul.	Vulnerable
Overtrick, undoubled	100	200
Overtrick, doubled	200	400
Making a doubled contract (inval)	50	50
Revoke a redoubled contract (inval)	100	100
Small slam (12 tricks) bid and made	500	750
Grand slam (13 tricks) bid and made	1,000	1,500

Contracts Defeated

Undertricks	Vulnerable			Not vulnerable
	Undoubled	Doubled	Redoubled	Undoubled	Doubled	Redoubled
First	50	100	200	100	200	400
Second & third	50	200	400	100	400	600
Subsequent	50	300	600	100	300	600
