Volume 152 of Punch was published on January 10, 1917. This volume contains a variety of humorous content, including cartoons, articles, and jokes. The cover of the volume features a cartoon of a man with a large head and a small body. The man is wearing a top hat and a monocle, and he is smoking a cigar. The caption below the cartoon reads, "The Man of the Moment." This cartoon is a satirical take on the British Prime Minister, David Lloyd George.

One of the most famous cartoons in Volume 152 is "The Roll of Honour." This cartoon depicts a group of soldiers marching in a parade. The soldiers are all wearing gas masks, and they are carrying rifles. The caption below the cartoon reads, "The Roll of Honour." This cartoon is a poignant reminder of the sacrifices that British soldiers made during World War I.

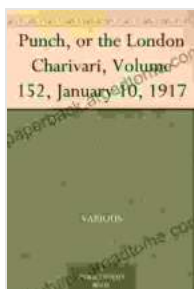

In addition to cartoons, Volume 152 of Punch also contains a number of articles and jokes. The articles cover a variety of topics, including the war, politics, and social issues. The jokes are typically short and witty, and they often poke fun at the foibles of human nature.

Punch, Or The London Charivari Volume 152 January 10 1917 is a classic work of British humor. This volume is a must-have for any collector of Punch or British humor. The cartoons, articles, and jokes in this volume are sure to entertain readers of all ages.
