Meet the Unforgettable Cast of Characters

From the iconic catchphrases to the hilarious skits, Laugh-In was a star-studded affair that featured an ensemble cast of unforgettable characters. Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, the show's hosts, were the perfect comedic duo, with their witty banter and infectious enthusiasm.

But it was the supporting cast that truly stole the show. Ruth Buzzi, Judy Carne, Lily Tomlin, Goldie Hawn, and Arte Johnson were just a few of the talented performers who brought these characters to life. Each had their own unique style and delivery, creating a truly memorable ensemble.

Memorable Skits and Catchphrases

Laugh-In was known for its fast-paced, sketch-comedy format, and the show churned out some of the most iconic skits in television history. From the "Sock It to Me" sketches with Sammy Davis Jr. to Lily Tomlin's hilarious

Ernestine character, these skits have become a part of American pop culture.

And who could forget the show's unforgettable catchphrases? "You bet your sweet bippy!" "Very interesting..." and "Here come da judge!" are just a few of the expressions that were burned into the minds of viewers.

A Social and Political Satire

While Laugh-In was primarily known for its humor, it also had a sharp satirical edge. The show's writers were not afraid to tackle serious issues, from the Vietnam War to political corruption. Laugh-In used comedy as a way to hold a mirror up to society and to challenge the status quo.

A Legacy of Laughter and Innovation

Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In had a profound impact on American television. It broke the mold of traditional comedy shows and paved the way for a new era of satirical and sketch-based comedy. The show's influence can still be seen in modern comedy shows, which continue to draw inspiration from Laugh-In's innovative format.
